

SHERLOCK HOLMES

Sex & Nudity

In one scene, Irene Adler strips down, but entirely covered either by a towel or by a dressing guard.

The following scene Holmes wakes up completely naked with only a pillow guarding the sight of anything. Very comical.

In multiple scenes Holmes is teased by Irene, although no sexual activity follows.

Irene kisses Holmes very hard after he's been drugged.

A man is seen in a bathtub. It can be inferred that the man is nude (obviously, since he is taking a bath), but nothing is ever seen below his chest.

Violence & Gore

At the beginning of the movie, there is a long scene where Holmes and Watson fight through several of Black's men. Holmes goes through carefully explained thoughts on how he will take down men on several occasions, dislocations of various joints (jaws, knees, shoulders, elbows) and shows the breaking of several legs and ribs as they are hit in slow motion.

Holmes and Watson are stumbled upon and get in many fights throughout, which are bloodless and usually silent except for grunts and music. In short, there is no sound of bones breaking or things like that.

Usually. Holmes uses a cattle prod to violently shock a man in three occasions. Although he does not die. Holmes is hit in the legs and appears to be run over by a boat.

Pig carcasses are cut in half by a large saw, there is no gore, but we see the carcasses get decapitated and see pieces of raw, sometimes bloody meat lying around on the floor. Several men are shot.

An explosion harms several important characters.

A man drowns in a bathtub.

A man bursts into flames and falls out a three-story window.

There are two hanging scenes, one is a casual way of killing a prisoner on death row, while the other very violent.

A woman falls off a bridge and appears to die.

Many times Holmes will find himself dodging blows from things such as a hammer wielded by a large man, these scenes may get intense.

Profanity

Very clean. One "Hell", one "D*nm" and an "Oh my God!" or "Dear God!".

Alcohol/Drugs/Smoking

Holmes smokes a pipe on three occasions throughout the movie.

There is a lot of drinking of wines and hard liquors throughout, such as at restaurants and seen at formal scenes in the movie.

After getting out of a gambling fight, Holmes picks up an old fashion beer and takes a swig as the scene ends.

Holmes collapses after being sneaked a sedative in a wine.

Holmes tries several "experiments" on his dog with things such as a homemade anesthesia.

Frightening/Intense Scenes

The opening scene may be intense. It appears that they are controlling a woman with dark magic.

There is a scene where they open a coffin and see a dead man. There are maggots crawling out of his face. We see this image several more times throughout in a flashback.

We see quick views of the dissection of a frog and some rats. Just like high school biology.

There is a quite long scene where a girl is going to be burned alive, and then sawed in half inside a butchery and Holmes and Watson attempt to save her. It's really just a rescue scene.

In the Butcher shop there are quite a few dead pigs, pig heads, pig corpses being sawed in half and dead rats which have been gutted. This may be gross and disturbing to some viewers.

There are several scenes involving dark magic. One in-particular where Holmes attempts to "see" and ends up seeing rather violent flashbacks controlled by Black, which highly involve deaths and quite a few scary images.

One man randomly combusts into flames which appears to be due to dark magic and is in itself quite unexpected and may be intense to some viewers.

There is a part when Holmes is on the bridge where a girl is slowly being pushed off. In the following scene a man is being pulled off the edge with a heavy weight and is trying very hard to keep from falling.